

Professional statement

I am quick to adapt in different environments, detail oriented, and have great problem-solving skills with years of experience in programming. As I've been around a lot of different people who are not very connected to technologies, I place a high value on protecting those who aren't very familiar with how dangerous networks, internet, data, etc can be. I am also enthusiastic about protecting an organization's network, and data as it involves things I'm very interested in such as programming and problem solving. Another thing that interests me about cyber security is that you constantly have to learn new programs and technology as technologies evolve. I'm always ready to learn new things, adapt to different environments and seeking to bring my skills into your cybersecurity team.
